“ I have so many memories of Cheryl that it's difficult to pick a favorite, but one special memory is all the times that she and I shared when she lived across the street from me in New Castle. The first time that she proudly showed off her apartment, I instantly noticed a big telescope that appeared to be pointed right out her living room window into my husband's and my bedroom window! We all laughed and laughed that Cheryl was a secret voyeur, but really it was her joy of astrology. I remember her lugging her telescope down to the wharf along the Delaware River to watch the stars (even went with her one moonlit night).
